

Brainwashed - Einstürzende Neubauten

Written by Jon Whitney

Sunday, 16 May 2004 09:14 - Last Updated Friday, 21 June 2013 11:12

After over two decades, Einstürzende Neubauten have reached a point in their career that they don't have to explain themselves any more. However, with the problems in the music business and economy, touring has become increasingly difficult. While the band loves to play and tour, this might be the last US tour in the foreseeable future. The Eye sat down with Blixa who gave a fantastic interview. We talked about the times around the origins of the group, their evolution, battle scars, junkyards, and neubauten.org and some of the amazing activities and benefits that supporters got to take part in.