

Brainwashed - Andreas Martin

Written by Jon Whitney

Sunday, 20 February 2005 10:12 - Last Updated Tuesday, 18 June 2013 09:19

It is an honor to feature Andreas Martin on this week's issue of The Eye. This multi-talented guitarist first made a name for himself in HNAS back in the 1980s. Along with his brother, Christoph Heemann, Martin has released a small number of recordings on his own and has provided all that fantastic work in the supergroup Mimir (where his guitar work is most commonly mistaken as Jim O'Rourke's work). We caught a rare concert with him and an even more rare interview and encourage people who are unfamiliar with his music to watch and enjoy his amazing playing and fantastic music. By his accounts, we should see a full length album from him later this year. Let's keep our fingers crossed.