Seldom does a musician come along who lives up to the hype that precedes them. Beirut, led by a young Zach Condon, is one of those bands whose performing and writing talents are winning fans and critics worldwide.

We're excited to present footage from the full band on in one of Beirut's first performances outside of New York a couple months back, and as well as the opportunity to include a brief interview with Zach taken at a more recent show. Both events were presented once again by The Critique of Pure Reason.

Those who look real closely will see Jeremy and Heather from A Hawk and a Hacksaw, featured previously on The Eye.
