The Cleopatra Set is a brand new collection of music by Diamanda Galás, promising “the most electrifying, previously unreleased performances and exceptional re-interpretations.” The set is going to be available as individual tracks downloadable from diamandagalas.com as high quality WAV files. The first piece, “A Soul That’s Been Abused,” is a Ronnie Earl cover recorded in April 2008 in Paris and is available now.

“Pardon Me, I’ve Got Someone To Kill,” an old Johnny Paycheck tune from 1966, recorded at the same aforementioned show in Paris, will be available next.
