About Predicate:

The Dunblane Massacre in Scotland, March 1996, remains the most abhorred act of mass murder ever perpetrated in the British Isles. Thomas Hamilton, a 43-year-old former scout leader, entered Dunblane Primary School armed with 4 handguns and shot dead 16 schoolchildren and 1 teacher before turning his weapons on himself. Ten years on, controversial author Peter Sotos re-examines Dunblane, dissecting Thomas Hamilton's motives and life and revealing the gay sub-culture of clandestine paedophilia which spawned this most reviled of all killers. Sotos covers such subjects as Operation Ore, the Wonderland arrests, Russian orphanages, Megan's law and non-nude Teen websites to illustrate how art and reality blur into the banality of pornography, voyeurism and murder.
